Most of us look forward to our retirement from full-time work, eagerly anticipating more free time and opportunities to play. But the reality of retirement can be very different. Relationships with family and friends may change and unexpected challenges may present themselves, leading us to wonder who we really are and what we can reasonably expect to accomplish in the remaining years of our lives. Based on a book by the same name, The Retire Smart, Retire Happy pledge special is presented in a lecture format with a live studio audience. Dr. Nancy Schlossberg includes examples of situations experienced by actual retirees, short self-assessment quizzes and useful tips on coping with the ups and downs of retirement. She also takes questions from the audience. Audience members and viewers will be introduced to some common personality types among retirees, including Continuers, Adventurers, Searchers, Retreaters, and Easy Gliders. Armed with this knowledge, Dr "S" shows us how understanding our retirement "type" can help us put our strengths and resources to work. In addition, Dr. "S" presents positive steps to a happy retirement. She'll teach us how to conduct a personal inventory, reinforce relationships, investigate new roles and activities, and take charge of the future. About Dr. "S": A professor of Counseling Psychology and now a retiree herself, Dr. Schlossberg has dedicated her entire career to the study of transitions. She has been quoted in the cover story in USA Today, the New York Times, Wall Street Journal, Sarasota Herald Tribune, Reader's Digest, Family Circle, Better Homes and Gardens, U.S. News and World, Consumer Reports, as has appeared on PBS In the Prime, Derek's McGinty's national talk radio show, CBS This Morning, and. CBS evening news. Dr. Schlossberg has delivered more than 100 keynote addresses including the Council of Presidents of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities; the national convention of the American Counselors' Association and the Smithsonian/American Psychological Association's series on mid-life.

Ahmet Ertegun, a young Turk - literally - with an immigrant's passion for the African-American music he heard in the rigidly segregated Washington, DC, nightclubs of the 1940s, recognized that "all popular music stems from black music, be it jazz or rock 'n' roll or rap." He exported these unique sounds to England, where they merged with the European sensibility, and then imported that fusion back across the ocean. "The Atlantic Sound," which sprang from the small record label Ertegun co-founded in 1947, was a revolutionary new genre, single-handedly influencing the future direction of contemporary music. Ertegun wrote music, produced music, defined careers and changed lives. "He found Ray Charles, he introduced Eric Clapton to Aretha Franklin, he fell asleep on Mick Jagger," says Rolling Stone founder Jann Wenner in AMERICAN MASTERS "Atlantic Records: The House That Ahmet Built."

We have always had a deep sense of longing for the handmade. Perhaps because each of us, in our own way, has had a craft experience. Sometimes it's an object passed down to us, or one that crosses our path, and connects us to others in traditions, heritage and rituals. You've begun your understanding and appreciation with our TV series. Now go further with the other elements of this comprehensive journey. MEMORY - How do we recall our history? Through words? Images? Events? The true link to our collective past -- and keeping it alive -- is through our objects, drawing power from their influences. Sometimes humble, sometimes extravagant, objects stay with us. They are the ties that bind us to our past, no matter how distant that past may be.

In the 1970's and 80's, Land Developer Gary Bradley worked to transform Austin, Texas' pristine hill country into lucrative residential subdivisions, making both headlines and lots of money. When local residents learned of new plans to develop 4,000 acres over nearby Barton Creek, they rose up to stop Bradley and his partners in their tracks. Whereas the developers had strong connections in the Texas legislature -- and a powerful ally in eventual Governor George W. Bush -- the city had an even stronger connection to their unspoiled home. NOW's David Brancaccio talks with filmmaker Laura Dunn about her documentary, "The Unforeseen," which captures the drama, passion, and heartfelt convictions on all sides of the conflict without making easy targets of any of them.

A deal on immigration reform - maybe; a cloud over the attorney general and the White House; and politics meets religion: past and present. I'm John Harwood sitting in for Gwen Ifill tonight on "Washington Week." Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-MA) said, "Politics is the art of the possible." Lawmakers and the president trumpet a deal on immigration, but the details are trouble in Congress and on the presidential campaign trip. Rep. Tom Tancredo said, "This is another amnesty. No matter how much lipstick you want to put on the pig, it is still a pig called amnesty." The president's men: one out, one in, one left hanging after dramatic congressional testimony. James Comey said, "The door opened and in walked Mr. Gonzales." What is the faith of the embattled attorney general? And the passing of a controversial preacher spotlights the mix of politics and religion. With unconventional candidates in both parties, where will conservative Christians go in 2008? Covering these stories this week: Jeanne Cummings of the Politico, Peter Baker of the Washington Post, Alexis Simendinger of National Journal, and Karen Tumulty of Time Magazine.

When veteran government auditor Bobby Maxwell learned oil giant Kerr McGee was not paying the $10 million he says it owed in oil royalties, he prepared an order to Kerr McGee to pay up. Making sure the government gets its money from energy companies was Maxwell's job in the Minerals Management Service (MMS), a division of the Department of the Interior. But Maxwell claims his bosses at the MMS quashed that order. After filing a lawsuit under the False Claims Act, which protects and encourages whistleblowers, Maxwell lost his job. This week, NOW talks with Maxwell about the personal and professional price he says he paid in pursuit of fairness, and examines an industry under fire for keeping too much of the enormous revenue it makes for drilling on land and waters owned by us all. Are oil and gas companies being protected--and even feted--by the government agency charged with regulating them? "I felt very strongly that the American taxpayers just had $10 million stolen out of their pocket," Maxwell tells NOW Senior Correspondent Maria Hinojosa. "And that that needed to be remedied."

Immigration reform - dead or just on life support? Scooter Libby heading to jail or toward a pardon? And Russia's Vladimir Putin: friend or wily foe? Tonight, on "Washington Week." The immigration fight consumes the U.S. Senate. Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-MA) said, "Every day we have - we continue without this legislation, we have these well trained, well disciplined, highly motivated bodyguards out there chasing people across the desert that are landscapers." Sen. Trent Lott (R-TN) said, "Do we have the courage, tenacity, and the ability to get anything done anymore?" Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "I doubt if the prospects will get better with the passage of time. And it dominates the Republican candidates' debate." Rudy Giuliani said, "The problem with this immigration plan is that it has no real unifying purpose. It's a typical Washington mess." While Democrats squabble over the war. Sen. Hillary Clinton (D-NY) said, "This is George Bush's war. He is responsible for this war." Policy and politics collide. Scooter Libby gets the book thrown at him - two and a half years in jail. Will it stick? The president abroad - President George W. Bush said, "He made some interesting suggestions." - playing diplomatic chicken with an increasingly hostile Russian leader, plus a shake-up at the Pentagon. Covering these stories this week: Charles Babington of the Associated Press, James Barnes of National Journal, Pierre Thomas of ABC News, and Michael Duffy of Time Magazine.

Four years ago on May 1, President Bush landed on the aircraft carrier USS Lincoln wearing a flight suit and delivered a speech in front of a giant "Mission Accomplished" banner. He was hailed by media stars as a "breathtaking" example of presidential leadership in toppling Saddam Hussein. Despite profound questions over the failure to locate weapons of mass destruction and the increasing violence in Baghdad, many in the press confirmed the White House's claim that the war was won. MSNBC's Chris Matthews declared, "We're all neo-cons now;" NPR's Bob Edwards said, "The war in Iraq is essentially over;" and Fortune magazine's Jeff Birnbaum said, "It is amazing how thorough the victory in Iraq really was in the broadest context."

This program is the definitive history of the world's most dangerous terrorist organization. It is also the first film to attempt to fully get inside the heads of the men who led Al Qaeda, exploring the ideas that motivated and drove them. With rare footage and firsthand testimony from those who fought, planned, argued, met or lived with them, this is the inside story of Al Qaeda's three leaders -- Osama Bin Laden, Ayman Zawahiri and the recently killed leader of Al Qaeda in Iraq, Abu Musab Al Zarqawi. It is also the story of how the peaceful and noble religion of Islam was perverted by Islamist terrorists in the name of jihad.

9/11 has indelibly altered America in ways that people are now starting to earnestly question: not only perpetual orange alerts, barricades and body frisks at the airport, but greater government scrutiny of people's records and electronic surveillance of their communications. The watershed, officials tell FRONTLINE, was the government's shift after 9/11 to a strategy of pre-emption at home -- not just prosecuting terrorists for breaking the law, but trying to find and stop them before they strike.

Saturday, June 2, 2007                      1:00 PM                      Forever Wild
Alabama Forests are part of the larger southern forest ecosystem, the most productive forest regions in the nation. This unique forest region is especially diverse due to its climate and soils, and because of geological conditions associated with particular events of prehistoric times. This program highlights the importance of Alabama forests in context with the history and significance of the southern forest system.

Saturday, June 2, 2007                      1:30 PM                      Earth Day
Discovering Alabama has completed several programs about the natural wonders of Alabama forests. Therefore, this program focuses primarily on key issues of forest controversy, including such hot-button issues as the practice of clear-cutting and the conversion of natural forestlands to pine tree plantations. The program features guest commentary from industry, environmental organizations, and forest research scientists, and examines these different interest groups perspective about the concept of "sustainable forestry."

Sunday, May 27, 2007                      2:00 PM                      Eric Johnston/David Gepass
The United State Supreme Court last month upheld the Federal Partial Birth Abortion Ban Act of 2003. The decision was considered a historic ruling setting the stage for a possible overturn of Roe Versus Wade, the Supreme Court ruling making abortion legal. Eric Johnston supports the court's decision, David Gepass disagrees with the ruling. The Birmingham attorneys will discuss the ruling and the impact it will have.

Sunday, June 3, 2007                      2:00 PM                      Marcus Mabry
Newsweek editor Marcus Mabry has gone below the steely eyed surface of Condoleeza Rice, the Birmingham-born Secretary of State, to explore her upbringing in 1960's Birmingham. Mabry finds a woman of contradictions, who helped elect George Bush President twice, and yet who's best friend is gay. She studied piano for years, only to abandon it when she discovered she could never be among the best. Author of Twice as Good, Condoleeza Rice and her Path to Power.

Sunday, June 10, 2007                      2:00 PM                      William Bowman
William Bowman talks about work to help those with vision problems live more productive lives. Bowman is President and Chief Executive Officer of Visually Impaired People a non profit group in Selma. The group not only works with individuals but businesses on employing those with low vision and how firms can better serve those with vision problems. A new study shows the over fishing of sharks is having an impact on some seafood. Officials on Alabama's Gulf Coast discuss the issues. Eric Metaxas talks about his book "Amazing Grace." The book tells the story of William Wilberforce's battle to abolish slave trading in England.

Sunday, June 17, 2007                      2:00 PM                      Robert Clem
John Patterson In The Wake of Assassins . A new documentary traces the life of the former Governor, including the murder of his Father in Phoenix City and his subsequent investigation as Attorney General and Governor. Historic photos and film help paint the picture of that Alabama city as a haven for gangsters who ran the town and its elections. We'll talk with the documentary producer. It will air on APT on June 18th and June 26th at 8:00 P.M.

Sunday, June 24, 2007                      2:00 PM                      Ala. Agriculture Comm. Ron Sparks

The drought conditions in Alabama are merely an inconvenience for most state residents...moving hoses here and there, washing the car more often...but for people who grow things for a living, the drought is a life or death event. We'll talk with Alabama Agriculture Commissioner Ron Sparks and Carol Barton the immediate past president of the Alabama Nursery and Landscape Association about how the drought is hurting farmers and the "green industry".
